NOTE: NABBA Bylaws, Article IV, Section 1, par (f) – “Any British-type brass band may become a member band. A British-type brass band is one that utilizes the instrumentation of historic British brass bands of the late 20th century (by example, Black Dyke Band and the International Staff Band of The Salvation Army), utilizing cornets (or trumpets), tenor horns (or French horns), flugelhorn, baritones, euphoniums, trombones, tubas and percussion. Such brass bands play repertoire composed for British-type brass band.”

By checking this box we acknowledge that we have read and affirm that our organization conforms to the above definition.
